Claim Objections

Claim 23 objected to because of the following informalities: In line 2 there is ")" which appears to be a typographical error. For the purposes of examination, it will be treated as such. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1,3-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e,e,e,b,b,b) as being clearly anticipated by Stehr (USP 6,227,824), Husar et al. (2004/0166028), Raz et al.(USP 6,323,040), Johnson (USP 4,077,845), Kricka et al. (USP 5,744,366), or Polaschegg et al (USP 4,508,622) respectively.

All of the cited references teach liquid handling devices having at least two interconnecting plates that have been read on the claimed "planar elements". The devices have a fluid inlet and outlet that have been read on the claimed "mouth" and "outwardly leading passage". The devices all teach means to pump, force or displace the test fluid through the device which has been read on the claimed "displacement device".

With respect to Hussar et al., this reference qualifies as prior art because it has a different inventive entity and the international filing date of the '371 is before 11/29/99 which does not disqualify the reference under 35 USC 102(c).
